N. York Father Awaits
Clues to Whereabouts
Of 12-Yr.-Old Boy

ABDUCTORS ASK
$60,000, IS REPORT

Seeks, Without Police Aid,
To Meet Demands of Kidnapers

(By Associated Press)
NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., March 1.—An anxious father awaited a clue to the whereabouts of his missing 12-year-old son today while he sought without police aid to meet the demands of those who may be holding my boy.

Directed to Note
A police officer said Levine had been directed in a telephone call late Thursday night, several hours after his son had disappeared on his way home from school, to a note hidden under a rock in a nearby vacant lot. The officer said the note, crudely pencilled, demanded $60,000.

Police who cancelled an eight-state alarm at the father's request after he received the note, believed at first that the boy, a bright student fond of detective tales, had tricked his parents.

Philip S. Tilden, director of public safety, said he was convinced now, however, that it was an authentic kidnaping.

He said his force of 300, in deference to Levine's wishes, would stand aside until the father had exhausted every possibility of recovering his son unaided.

Reed Vetterli, New York chief of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, said his department also would respect Levine's desire, but Tilden said federal agents had been seen in the vicinity of the home.

Bans Telephone Calls
The father in a radio appeal asked that no telephone calls be made to the home until he had had "a reasonable opportunity to work this out."

"Those who may be holding my boy can safely deal with me," he promised.

Peter, blue-eyed and brown-haired, was the second person to disappear in this region recently.

Arthur Fried, young White Plains business man, disappeared from his home two months ago. He still is missing, despite repeated offers by his family to pay a ransom. Federal agents list the case as an unsolved kidnaping.

COUNTY RELIEF IS ALLOCATED

New System of Administration Is Effective Today

LISBON, March 1.—Columbiana county's revised system of relief administration went into effect today as county authorities notified the various cities, villages and townships of the amounts of money they could spend for relief.

At the same time the county officials and Norman J. Hirt, state relief examiner, disclosed that 6,381 persons are receiving relief in the county today. This figure, they said, represents 1,859 cases.

The total amount allowed the various municipalities and townships to spend for relief during March is $14,000.

The funds come from the state to the county on a match basis. For every $2 the state forwards the county, the county must put up $1.

Under the new plan, effective today, the county notified the various communities of the amounts they can spend for relief. The allocations will not be made until after the bills, sent in to Examiner Hirt, are properly audited.

The amounts designated for the communities to spend, and the number of persons on relief in those cities or townships, is shown below:

Salem: $1,015.83 for 493 persons; East Liverpool: $4,510.89 for 2,056 persons; East Palestine: $794.23 for 362 persons; Wellsville: $1,147.47 for 523 persons; Perry township: $129.45 for 59 persons; Salem township: $1,107 for 505 persons; Liverpool township: $879.80 for 401 persons; Center township: $745.96 for 340 persons; Fairfield township: $263.28 for 120 persons; and Elkrun township: $133.83 for 61 persons.

POLICE CLAMP DOWN; TRAFFIC DRIVE GOES ON

Motorists Ignoring Tickets Are Warned By
Chief Stouffer

POLICE ARE TOLD TO "TAKE THEM IN"

Arrests Jump to New Record In February; 75 Are Listed

Chief of Police Ralph Stouffer issued a warning today to motorists who are ignoring traffic tickets.

"The police aren't just handing out tickets for the fun of it, and if motorists won't comply with the three-day limit to appear in the mayor's court, we'll issue warrants for their arrest and the police will go and get them," the chief said.

Enforcement of traffic rules in the city, especially with reference to illegal parking downtown, is being done, the chief explained, in order to aid motorists as a whole by providing more parking space.

Enforce "Courtesy System"

Before the drive on over-time parking was launched a month ago many drivers left their automobiles parked hour after hour, and as a result other motorists never could find parking space. "The police department is enforcing a courtesy system," said Chief Stouffer.

All drivers arrested for the so-called minor traffic violations are charged the flat rate of $1.

The police department arrests jumped to a new record last month when a total of 75 were reported, 28 of which were on traffic charges.

Members of the department, under orders to keep irresponsible drivers off the city streets, arrested eight motorists last month on charges of driving while under the influence of intoxicating liquors, and seven others on charge of reckless driving.

The latest victim, Louis House, 45, of 969 Liberty st., was nabbed on Newgarden ave. at 12:15 a. m. today by Patrolmen Clifford Todd and Paul Ormsby, who charged him with driving while intoxicated. House was jailed, pending a hearing before Mayor George Harroff.

February Arrests Listed

Arrests for February are summarized as follows:

Intoxication, 11; driving while drunk, 8; reckless driving, 7; auto theft, 2; minor traffic violations, 28; petty larceny, 1; forgery, 1; vagrancy, 2; indecent exposure, 1; assault with intent to rape, 1; keeping and exhibiting gambling devices, 1; disorderly conduct, 3; interfering with an officer, 1; loitering, 1; selling intoxicating liquor on Sunday, 1; driving with fictitious license plates, 1; hit-skip, 1; removing mortgaged property, 1; desertion, 1. Police also during the month investigated five burglaries, 23 traffic accidents, eight cases of petty larceny and two highway robberies.

A.A.A. Aid Stresses Safety Factor In Talk at Leontonia

LEONTONIA, March 1.—If even 50 per cent of the people of the United States would concern themselves with the problem of safety, that problem would be practically eliminated.

So declared E. D. McNelly of Washington, D. C., field representative of the A.A.A., as he addressed a meeting of a committee of members of the Columbiana County Motor club last night at the Presbyterian church here.

McNelly outlined the A.A.A. service program and stressed the need for emphasis of the safety factor.

He presented statistics to prove that close to 90 per cent of automobile accidents are attributable directly or indirectly to speed.

Commenting on Pennsylvania's new 50-mile speed limit law, McNelly said that the experiment is deserving of everyone's cooperation for at least a year, pointing out that if it succeeds in reducing to a marked degree the number of fatalities and accidents, then it would be worthy of adoption everywhere.

And he warned, at the same time, that it is being enforced rigidly.

Ladies of the Presbyterian church served the meal. Table decorations were in the A.A.A. colors—red, white and blue. Many novelties, such as miniature autos, safety slogans, stop and go lights, added to the effectiveness of the decorations.

Notice of Appeal Filed by Mrs. Hahn

COLUMBUS, March 1.—Counsel for Mrs. Anna Marie Hahn filed with the state supreme court today notice of appeal from her conviction for the poison death in Cincinnati of aged Jacob Wagner, retired gardener.

The notice does not stay Mrs. Hahn's execution, set for March 10, court attaches said.

H. C. Bolsinger, Mrs. Hahn's attorney, said an appeal would be filed later this week. The filing of an appeal would stay the execution automatically.

Davey, In Political Crisis, Appeals to House to Halt Senate Graft Investigation

Their Graft Quiz Stirs Ohio

Senators Metzbaum and Seidner

Far-reaching effects of the "legal graft" revelations dug up by an Ohio legislative committee headed by Senator Ralph Seidner resulted in a concerted drive by adherents of Gov. Martin L. Davey to block extension of the life of the committee as the legislature prepared to adjourn. The committee, counsel for which was Senator James Metzbaum, threatened further disclosures. Senators Metzbaum and Seidner are pictured during a recess in the investigation, which would end if the legislature adjourned.

Rev. S. T. Magann Announces Series Of Lenten Services

Tomorrow is Ash Wednesday, the beginning of Lent, and in observance of the sacred season a series of six consecutive Wednesday evening services will be held at the First Baptist church.

The Lenten studies will center around the theme, "The Cross of Jesus in the Fine Art of Triumph and Living." The series of subjects, one of which will be given each evening through Wednesday, April 6 are:

"The Art of Worship in Approaching the Cross"; "The Purposes of the Cross"; "Christ's Glory in the Cross"; "The Cross in the Conquest of Fear"; "The Power of the Cross"; and "The Call of the Cross."

The sessions will last for one hour, 7:30 to 8:30 each evening and will include a special music program in charge of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Snyder.

The mid-week studies at the First Baptist church have proven very popular this year. The attendance has averaged more than 100 each Wednesday evening and that does not include the last Wednesday in February when the Cleveland City Mission program brought an attendance of 240. Visitors will be welcome at all of the Lenten services.

For the boys and girls of 15 and under Mrs. Magann, wife of the pastor, will teach a class at the same time on the subject, "What Being a Christian Includes." This class will be of interest and value to those who already are Christians and to those who would like to know more about it with the view of considering baptism and church membership this Easter.

Lisbon Chess Champ Mows Down Foes; Issues Challenge to County Experts

LISBON, March 1.—If you're a chess player, look out! Robert D. Hamilton of Canton, who is employed as pharmacist at the Charles W. Nace drug store here, is on the warpath.

Hamilton, the champion of Stark county chess circles and president of the Canton Y. M. C. A. Chess & Checker club, has swept aside all the opposition in his home territory. Now he's on the warpath for the scalps of Columbiana county chess stars.

Challenges Columbiana Man
The Stark county champion is willing to arrange a 15-game title match with any one in the county. He is especially anxious to test his skill against H. O. Peterson of Columbiana, who claims the title by virtue of winning all games in an exhibition at East Liverpool recently.

Hamilton hopes to stir up local and county-wide interest in chess through a series of championship matches. He knows only a few players in the county, but hopes to acquaint himself with more through his open challenge.

A resident of Canton and Hamilton for the past 35 years, Hamilton has been employed at the Nace drug store here for one year.

He has been Stark county chess champion for 25 years and recently defended his title against William H. Stough of Canton. Although this match was cut short by the rain, Hamilton was declared the victor after he had won six games to Stough's three.

Two-Month Match
The shortened-match was in progress for more than two months with one game lasting four and one half hours. The games were played on Wednesday and Sunday nights.

Hamilton participated last year in the ninth annual national checker tournament at Martins Ferry and in one of his matches competed against H. O. Newcomb, the state champion for six years.

In 1930, Hamilton tied for sixth place in the Cedar Point master chess players tournament. Walter Rubin won the event.

Chess players interested in contacting Hamilton to arrange matches may write him at 111 North Market st. or phone the Nace drug store.

SENATE ACTION
APPROVES BILL

Also Asks Resignations of Various Department
Heads

COLUMBUS, March 1.—Gov. Martin L. Davey came today to perhaps the most serious crisis in his political career.

Ostensibly desirous of a third term which might reflect him as presidential timber in 1940, Ohio's chief executive fought ferociously to quell a movement designed, he said, to destroy him politically.

Power to stop the movement—a senate investigation of alleged graft in the state government—lay in the hands of the house of representatives. And to the house the governor appealed, in effect, for help.

As the house prepared to act on a senate-approved resolution which would continue the two-month-old investigation indefinitely, Governor Davey asked for a "fair inquiry."

Terming the senate investigation a "Russian inquiry to which I do everlastingly object," the governor told the house of representatives:

"You may go along with that if you wish, but God pity America if this is to be the fate of government and public officials."

Everything else in the legislature was overshadowed by the question of continuing the inquiry, which has produced sensational testimony and charges of graft, corruption and defrauding the taxpayers, and resulted in petitions for removal of the governor and demands for the resignation of the heads of the highway, liquor, purchasing and liquor-enforcement departments on charges of neglect of duty.

The demand for the department heads' resignations, contained in resolutions introduced in the senate, were met by the governor with the assertion that "I alone have the right to fire them, and I won't fire them."

Coupled with the resolutions was a preliminary report of the investigation which said:

"That the liquor department was 'swept through with forgery, corruption, graft, false reports, faked statistics, pretended 'buys' and maladministration'."

"That the highway department presented 'the sad spectacle of almost gleeful waste of the taxpayers' money'."

"That the purchasing department was operated 'so plainly in defiance of law as to cause this committee to be bewildered'."

The report said the federal government had permitted the waste of

Salem High School Negatives to Meet Williamsfield Affirmatives at Warren

With one victory to their credit in the district elimination, Salem High school's debaters will face another round of forensics at Warren at 2:30 p. m. Friday.

The local negative team will go to Warren, neutral grounds, to meet the affirmative debaters from Williamsfield, an Ashtabula county school. If the Quakers are successful in this debate they have only to win one more match to be eligible to compete later in the state finals at Columbus.

Constance Clarke and Lionel Diford will speak for Salem at Warren Friday. Miss Clarke and Elsie Hunter won for Salem over Ravenna last week. That debate was held at Kent.

Barberton Elks To Visit Salem Lodge

An initiation and entertainment Thursday night will highlight March activities of the Salem lodge of Elks.

Officials of the lodge today announced completion of arrangements for an interesting program, which will feature the appearance here of the Barberton lodge degree team.

The visitors will have charge of the initiation of several new members. The Barberton group is outstanding in national ranks, finishing eighth at the grand lodge meeting last year at Denver.

The initiation and lodge meeting will begin at 8 p. m. This will be followed by a buffet lunch and entertainment.

Approximately 40 are expected from Barberton, and, in addition, a number of lodge members from Warren.

SAVING DEMOCRACY, THE HARD WAY

There is a way to save democracy without fighting—a hard way, not with excitement, no hate, no banner waving, no blood lust in it.

It is to make democracy so bountiful in its rewards of freedom, happiness and the right to think, speak and act independently of sniveling political overlords that it can't be destroyed.

The point needs to be hammered home. It is the only neutralizing antidote for the crusading propaganda which is beginning to seep poison into the minds of Americans.

They are being urged to take sides in a foreign clash—to believe one side is right and the other side is wrong before they even know how the sides are going to be chosen up.

Do Americans believe democracy can be saved by destroying what isn't democracy? Not many believe that, yet it's the position they are being urged to take.

Do they believe they can save democracy by killing, if necessary, hundreds of thousands of other human beings who happen not to believe in it, or who, believing in it, are restrained from practicing it? Not many believe that.

What most Americans do believe is this: Democracy is worth saving. Believing that, they should not find it difficult to believe the best way to save it is to make it work so well that no other political plan will be able to compete with it successfully.

The modern method of destroying a government is to weaken it to the point where a challenge from an unfriendly power will be echoed from within the government, itself. That is what must be prevented in the United States.

Democracy can be a star set in the sky to guide the oppressed peoples of the world, if those who still have a chance to experiment with it believe in it completely.

The United States can shed the light of liberalism into all the dark corners if they make up their minds that this nation should preserve the most enlightened political heritage in existence.

Americans can put dictators and authoritarians to shame. They can create a nation so glorious, in the pattern of free government, that the mouths of its challengers will be hushed by shame and their fists shackled with impotence.

That would be saving democracy.

HOWLING

Late last week the Japanese had one of the roughest, rowdiest sessions of parliament in memory. Members yelled at one another, saying mean, cutting things.

What was the source of the quarrel? Simply dislike, by a large number of the lawmakers, for a proposal they suspected must be an imitation of a Nazi German law because it gave the state everything and the people nothing.

Speakers for the opposition called this "control" law everything they could think of, including "un-constitutional," which is a fighting word in Japan, too.

The incident is worth pointing out because it suggests that a great many Japanese aren't ready yet to imitate the Nazis and because it is one more case where mention of Nazi methods starts a wave of howling—probably the most damaging evidence in existence that what Chancellor Hitler and his crowd say is strength really is weakness. If general unwillingness to be like the Nazis is a sign of their strength, then castor oil must be the tastiest of cordials.

WEASEL WORDS

Both Italy and Germany, it is reported, are willing to accept a British proposal for withdrawing their "volunteers" from Spain.

This should be a good act—German and Italian messengers on horseback galloping through Spain pleading with soldiers in the name of THE HEAD MAN to come home—oh father, dear father come home, and all that stuff.

While posterity may be puzzled by the question of how a government can order home a "volunteer," there's little doubt the brave laddies will be glad to return to an involuntary basis. There must have been times when they suspected they weren't "volunteers" anyway. Now if they could all ride home in a "private" submarine, the little drama of weasel words which has been raging at the eastern end of the Mediterranean would be complete.

THE STARS SAY:

For Wednesday, March 2

A day of surprising, possibly mysterious, events is forecast from the very interesting chain of lunar transits. Intrigue, subtlety, romance, adventure and big business are involved, with powerful affiliations in both a business and social connection playing important parts in affairs that should reach surprising culminations. Favors, honors, gifts and much pleasure heighten a condition of gratification and happiness.

Those whose birthday it is are justified in anticipating a very progressive, prosperous and happy year, with many surprises and curious adventures. The co-operation and favors of elders, superiors, friends, and their generosity and good will, may be expected.

A child born on this day may have many talents and characteristics for a successful and happy life. It may glory in peculiar, curious or unusual adventures and occupations, with intrigues, secrecy and subtlety dominating its operations, both business and social.

O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following "New York Day by Day" column, by Oscar Odd McIntyre, was prepared by the famous New York writer and distributed prior to his death.)

NEW YORK—First nights in the theatre inspire columns of space, click the cameras and bring out the curious. But not much is ever said about the last nights. Yet Broadway has a closing or so every week. They are the down-side of the emotional sea-saw.

It is a custom for musical comedies to clown the final performance. Pagliacci carrying on! In more opulent troupings days the last night meant hurrying to catch a train for the beginning of a tour that might end in San Francisco. The first stop was usually a sleeper jump to Boston.

But a last night these days is the end of the run and the breaking up of many solid friendships. Mrs. Fiske always rushed away from a closing on the verge of hysteria and there are usually misty eyes, firm handclaps and solemn pledges of eternal friendships.

Now and then the star or producer tosses a party back stage at which everyone, stage hands, doormen, ushers and cast, participate. The one big happy family stuff with a sprinkle of sobby speeches and perhaps gifts for those who have given of loyalty and service.

New York has a brand of ladies who may be definitely typed as Office Women. They have their own outlooks, views and attitudes. To many they are a bit glacial. More than most women they know how to put man in place. Over the phone in casual matters they are cordial enough but when business bobs up they seem of a sudden flint. I think it was the industrialist Thomas Watson who said 80 percent of the nation's important business is now carried on by efficient woman secretaries. Margaret De Hand at the White House is an illustration.

Incidentally, the first to seize upon the office girl as a subject for the comic strip was A. E. Hayward, who from Santa Fe, N. M., still limns his "Somebody's Stenog." He has drawn it for more than 15 years and it antedates such other excellencies expressing a similar vocational metier as Winnie Winkle the Breadwinner and Tillie the Toiler.

In a dining place the other evening I had a grand time pecking aside at an Italian count toying with his vast plate of spaghetti. His meal consisted of spaghetti, baked clams and a raw pear—nothing more save of course the pint of basketed Chianti. There is a definite art in forking a spear of spaghetti, twirling it into the generous mouthful and sucking down the frazzled ends at almost a single stroke. Two heaping platefuls thus vanished in gastronomic rhythm. Another notable trencherman I enjoy watching in action is Gilbert Miller. Ordering a meal is to him, as should be all a sort of high-light of the day. He is interested in every phase of the serving and there is a gustatory relish in each bite. Such gourmets are the delight of high class restaurant men. They fairly beam when they pop in for a meal.

The Great White Way that Renold Wolfe named is, of course, no longer white. Mostly pink and red with overtones of green and yellow. Mazda Lane thus becomes Neon Place. Ninety percent of the lighting from Square to Circle is in the newer manner. Broadway, as a result, does not have the squad of spotters whose duties were to roam the boulevard from 8 p. m. until 3 a. m. for dead bulbs. Although the general effect is brighter, the cost is considerably less.

ASTHMA

THERE ARE said to be more than a half million cases of asthma in America. There is no doubt this number would be even greater were it not for the advances made in its treatment.

Dr. Copeland

Asthma is a peculiar disease. It is not caused by a germ of infection. The vast majority of cases are due to a peculiar sensitivity to certain substances. Persons who possess this unpleasant sensitivity are said to be "allergic". They have attacks of spasmodic breathing when exposed to that substance to which they are sensitive.

This sensitivity may well be a hereditary condition. This is believed to be the case because asthma is usually found in families in which the same affliction has been suffered by the parents and grandparents. It is like hives, another allergic condition.

Sources of Attacks
The victim of asthma may be sensitive to a food, to a pollen, or one of many other things, some of them wearing apparel. Contact with the offending substances brings on an attack. In severe cases, even indirect exposure to this substance may bring about a reaction. These allergic individuals are always in fear of an attack. If you have ever witnessed a sufferer from asthma in an attack, you can readily understand this fear.

Most persons have the mistaken idea that asthma is an incurable disease. It is by no means incurable.

How can we treat this condition? First, it is necessary to determine exactly the substance which is producing the trouble. By means of the so-called "scratch tests" or "skin tests", which I have described before, it is possible to find it. After the exciting substance has been identified, if it is withdrawn from the diet or from possible contact with the allergic individual, the asthmatic attacks will soon disappear.

Food May Cause It
Sometimes several items of food in the diet of a given person may be responsible for the symptom. For example, eggs, cream and oatmeal, foods which are desirable from the nutritional standpoint, may cause it. Their evil effects may possibly be diminished by the injection of what are called "allergens". These are made from the irritating substance and injected under the skin of the patient in tiny doses. The quantity is gradually increased. The purpose of the treatment is to build up a resistance against the offending foods or other substances. Of course, not all cases are successful, but relief is obtained in many.

"Women In Love" by May Christie

CHAPTER XIX

Ann padded softly back to her room and got into some clothes. She would go and get Bernice and bring her home. If her sister were in the condition indicated by the passage, her return, solo, or even accompanied by Freddie, might arouse the household. On the other hand, if she were really drunk, anything might happen to her, for Freddie, tight himself, was no protection. Quite the reverse.

Very quietly Ann let herself out of the front door.

She walked half a block west to Lexington ave., and hailed a passing taxi.

The so-called smart cocktail rendezvous was not nearly so crowded as she had imagined.

In one corner, however, five couples of her acquaintance were gathered about a table which they had just commandeered for a very late snack.

"Bernice? You were to meet her here? But she was here—she may have gone to the ladies' cloakroom—she was pretty well lit," said one of the girls in an unconcerned voice.

But Bernice was nowhere to be found. Ann felt relieved. Her sister had gone home.

But return to the apartment lightened her worry, for Bernice was not there!

Back to the cocktail rendezvous went Ann.

Her departure had not been noticed. She joined the party of five at their table. Hilarious now, they were arguing over their next move.

"Let's all dash up to Freddie's," a very pretty widow made the suggestion.

"Well, idea!"

"Okay with me!" from another. "Freddie's drinks are T.N.T."

"Dynamite!"

"Come on! Let's be on our way!"

A premonition in her heart, Ann went with them. What would she find there?

No use to head them off, this crowd. Under the influence of innumerable cocktails, they exhibited the invariable symptoms of a single-track mind.

The widow who had started the idea—rich and spoiled and predatory—had a yen for Freddie, and was jealous of Bernice. Possibly, in her over-stimulated mind, she had the suspicion that the latter was with Freddie in his apartment, and that it would be "getting even" to expose her, ruin her reputation!

For certainly, thought Ann, terrified, it would be ruined were this gang to find her in a bachelor's apartment at four o'clock in the morning alone with him!

They piled into two waiting cars.

A plan formed in Ann's mind as they whirled south to Gramercy park, where Freddie lived. There was almost nothing she wouldn't do to save her sister.

The quiet old square glowed with Christmas trees strung with colored lights. So peaceful, so remote from New York's busy-busy, it almost seemed like desecration to go hooting and honking round the garden that was slumbering on this night dedicated to family reunion. Christmas night!

It was a walk-up apartment. Someone pressed the button below the soiled card on which was written "Mr. Brandon."

"No reply."

"Pray heaven they aren't here," whispered Ann.

The widow insisted they all walk up the five flights—"because even if Freddie isn't in a drunken slumber it'll be so darned good for one's figure!" she shrieked.

Ann tried to overtake her in her mad rush upstairs. The stairs were narrow. It was impossible to get ahead of her.

Freddie's front door was ajar.

The apartment was in the California manner—kitchen, bathroom, one big room that was bedroom by night, living room by day.

The bed was out of its cupboard, and two figures were stretched upon it. Bernice fully clad. Freddie in his pajamas, snoring loudly.

It was like a nightmare to Ann. She remained calm outwardly, however. Wells of courage came to her, as courage often comes to one in an apparently desperate situation.

"Some sweet lovers? Huh?" the widow fairly spat out.

"Don't you know that Bernice has every right to be here?"

"I must congratulate her on her daring! We all know she's mad about Freddie, but isn't this going a bit far?"

"She's married to him!"

"Married? I simply don't believe it!" The widow was beside herself with spite, jealousy and the drinks she had consumed. "Why, Freddie proposed to me only three days ago."

"And then married Bernice!" Ann gasped.

One of the men guffawed: "A heart caught on the rebound!"

Ann shook Bernice. She did not move.

"Honey-moon too much for her!" laughed one of the gang. "Let the bride have her sleep out!"

"Congratulations, old chap! Why didn't you let us in on the wedding?" someone razzed him.

Freddie blinked sleepily.

"For the love of Mike, can't you leave a fellow in peace? The drinks are in the kitchen. All of you go out and drown yourselves!"

"It's a shame to disturb them," Ann smiled tolerantly, and with apparent nonchalance. "I'll mix you a drink if you promise to leave me alone after, for it's getting on so morning." She put an eiderdown comforter over Bernice. Watching her, the situation began to seem quite natural to the others.

Secret marriages were fashionable up and down Park ave., with the younger set. Ann was always thankful they knew that.

Stirring the cocktails in the kitchen, she kept the gang there with a story of the wedding ceremony at which she was sole witness, and Freddie so nervous that he forgot to bring a ring, so one was borrowed for the time being—and now Bernice was determined on a diamond circlet, though heaven alone knew if Freddie could afford it!

Ann played her part so well that all doubts were removed.

"If only I can get them out of here before either Freddie or Bernice wakes up!" she thought desperately. If that catastrophe should happen, she would still stick to her story. Denials from one or both of them would be put down to the desire for secrecy. Dad being opposed to their marriage. Anything to save Bernice!

Finally, to her immense relief, the five couples departed. Ann calling after them gaily: "I must undress the bride and tuck her up in bed."

"And now," thought she, as the last echo of their steps floated up the stairs, "the story will be all over New York by breakfast time! I'll have to hurry things along so she has the marriage certificate."

Provided she could wake them, it wouldn't take long to drive to Harrison, New York. As Bernice was twenty-one years old, there would be no obstacle, legally speaking, to the wedding.

Freddie had a ramshackle Ford. She would drive it herself, if necessary. This thing must go through.

She went into the bathroom. Bromo seltzer? Aspirin? The pick-me-ups were in the cabinet. Freddie was, finally aroused.

"So the gang was here? Good grief! I don't remember it—I mean I vaguely remember something—didn't they want drinks and piled out into the kitchen?"

Ann nodded.

"Freddie, it'll be all over town in a couple of hours! Bernice and you! You know what I mean?"

He blinked ruefully at the pale, pretty face on the pillow above the eiderdown quilt.

"They say us—like this?" in rueful amaze.

"I couldn't head them off, Freddie. I was worried about Bernice not coming home, so I phoned the restaurant, and someone said she was there—tight—so I dressed and came right after her, and no signs of either of you, so Mrs. What's-her-name—your friend, the widow—suggested every one come up to your apartment. I'll bet she did it on purpose, hoping to trap Bernice and ruin her good name. Nothing I could do could stop them coming, and you see you'd left your door open."

"A nice kettle of fish!" His round, cherubic face was devoid of its usual grin. His lips puckered into a whistle. He looked as if he were about to burst out crying.

"It's frightfully serious, Freddie. You know Bernice is fond of you, and I'm sure you reciprocate. You are fond of her, aren't you, Freddie? You don't want her name—"

—Ann swallowed—"banded about New York?"

"Oh, good Lord, no!" he groaned. "You must think I'm an awful rotter, Ann. I'm mighty sorry."

"It's too late just to be sorry, Freddie." Tears stood in Ann's eyes. "I love Bernice, and you know a scandal would simply kill my father. His heart isn't any too strong since the crash, anyway."

She was praying inwardly: "Dear Lord, let him marry her! Don't let disgrace come to Bernice!"

"I suppose," said Freddie, "there's only one thing to do? Announce our engagement?"

"That wouldn't be any use, Freddie. I—I told them you and Bernice were already married—a couple of days ago—I said I witnessed it—"

"Holy smoke!"

"Let's not quarrel, Freddie. It was the only thing that I could do. Coming upon you like this— the crowd all here, and loving a scandal as they do—I had to act quickly. Don't think I wanted to do it. I hate lying—but it was the only possible way out!"

She reasoned with him. Fixed him a stiff bromo-seltzer. They talked it over.

Humiliating to almost have to beg a man to marry one's sister! And after everything was arranged, and Freddie had got his car from the garage, it was no easy task to waken Bernice.

The trio reached Harrison at seven in the morning, where the wedding was performed by a justice of the peace.

At nine o'clock, Ann called the office of the best-known gossip writer in town.

His secretary answered. In a trembling voice, she informed her that it might be an interesting scoop to announce the "secret" marriage of Bernice Delafield to Freddie Brandon, the well known interior decorator, which had taken place three days ago.

The columnist's secretary wanted to know where the wedding had been solemnized.

Ann waived that.

"You can call Mr. Branton at his apartment around noon and he'll verify it," she gave Freddie's phone number and hung up.

Now to break the news to Dad and her mother. Lolly might be pleased at Bernice getting married—she wanted all her girls to be married quickly—"provided for," she called it. Which was ironical, in the circumstances!

Dad's tired gray face grew grayer as Ann, assuming a pleasure she was far from feeling, sprang her news.

So many strange things had happened to him in the past year that he had thought that he was immune..... beyond feeling anything..... yet this hit him.

"But why an elopement?" A puzzled hurt was in his eyes, his dazed look.

"Darling, it's been coming on for a long time. Like the measles. You know, girls, are awfully independent nowadays. You mustn't blame Bernice."

"But—but is he the right man?"

"He is—for her. She's in love, darling. She's terribly in love with Freddie Brandon."

Here Are Three "Nuptial Necessities"

Now that spring is in the offing, thoughts are turning to weddings and trousseau necessities. A house coat, lounging pajamas and a hostess gown are three "musts" on the shopping list of the bride-to-be. The hostess gown worn by Dolores Del Rio, above, would make any girl happy. Annabella, a chic young French actress, has chosen the above informal house coat for wear around her home. Gail Patrick is wearing lounging pajamas which, though tailored, have not lost the feminine touch.

CHICAGO—Clarence Bell decided upon a strategic move when his wrapped himself in a bathrobe and brought the animal to his warm room.

The barking stopped, but the dog's owner, Fred Pahlke, soon appeared with Policeman Michael Kerwin and had Bell charged with stealing his pet.

an automobile without the owner's consent, pleaded guilty at that time and was placed on probation.

Robert Unger and Homer Brown, Oliver's alleged companions, were bound over to the grand jury by Municipal Judge Frank Grosshans at East Liverpool yesterday and held under $3,000 bond each.

'Kilikilik' Origin Finally Revealed

TIFFIN — After 44 years of mystery, the meaning and origin of the word "Kilikilik," name of the Heidelberg college weekly newspaper, has been disclosed.

The originator was Dr. Arthur V.
Caselman, first editor-in-chief of the paper, who spent sleepless nights searching for a novel name.

One night, tossing in his bed, he was lulled to slumber by the rhythmic klick-klick-klick of a passing train, and shortened the soothing strain to kilikilik, a name that has been used since.

Lisbon P.T.A. Meets

LISBON, March 1.—Miss Alice Armstrong, physical education instructor, addressed members of the Parent-Teacher association when they met in the High school auditorium Monday evening.

Sixth grade pupils aided Miss Armstrong with a shadow play illustrating the benefits of physical education for school children.
Three pupils—Winston Bott, John Dangle and Richard Kennedy—engaged in a try-out speaking contest on the subject, "Economic Practices That Lead to War".

Latest in Chemical Warfare

Student officers in the chemical warfare school at Edgewood, Md., are shown leading up a Livens projector, which hurls a 60-pound gas-filled shell more than 1,500 yards. Nearly two-score officers of the army, navy and marine corps participated in the demonstrations. They will return to their units as instructors in chemical warfare.

Courts Are Upheld In Conspiracy Case

WASHINGTON, March 1.—Twelve persons convicted of conspiracy to commit election frauds at Kansas City, Mo., in connection with the November 1936 general election, failed yesterday in the supreme court in their effort to escape punishment.

The tribunal refused to review a decision by the eighth circuit court of appeals affirming the convictions in the federal district court of Kansas City.

One hundred and eighty-one election officials or workers were indicted and 37 have been convicted and sentenced to imprisonment ranging up to five years.

The 12 who appealed contended that "the evidence only showed conspiracies to commit general, impersonal election fraud" and not "a conspiracy against a definite individual citizen."

The supreme court in decisions specially awaited by government tax experts ruled that salary received by state employees engaged in liquidating state banks or insurance companies is subject to a federal income tax.

Constable Enacts Two Roles In Court

MARION—Constable A. F. Sams of Prospect township did double duty—as an arresting officer and defendant—when he brought Mrs.
Josephus Thomas into court for harboring an unlicensed dog, because Sams himself had been cited by County Warden Elmer Ullom on a similar charge.

Sams was fined $5 and paid $2 for a tag, while Mrs. Thomas paid a $5 fine and $4 for a tag.

HOLDOUT TAKES TRAINING DRILL

Earl Whitehill Working Out With Indians At Vitt's O. K.

NEW ORLEANS — The advance guard of Cleveland Indians, composed of battermen and rookie infielders, was increased today by Earl Whitehill, veteran southpaw hurler who still is a holdout. He has the permission of Manager Oscar Vitt to work out with the Tribe.

PRADENTON, Fla. — The Boston Red Sox are hopeful of cashing in this year on their gambles with Billy Werber, former University of New Hampshire southpaw. He was carried all last season despite a useless pitching arm, which was operated on last fall. He cut loose yesterday and showed Manager Casey Stengel plenty of stuff during batting practice.

BLOOMING, Miss. — Pitcher Claude Eason and third baseman Pinky White, have definitely joined the Cleveland Indians. Eason, who was dropped in at camp and departed when he found Prexy Gerry Nugent "was" here. Whitehill is staying home at San Antonio, Tex.

TAMPA, Fla. — Arnold Greene, former Pittsburgh Panther football player, has signed a Cincinnati contract with General Manager Warren Giles, subject to the O. K. of Manager Bill McKee, who will watch him at first base. Giles, hitting five players, said Paul Derringer was the only "holdout" problem as his demands are "exorbitant".

Others are Linus Frey, Buck Jordan, Ernie Lombardi and Chick Hafey.

McCarthy's Double

BALTIMORE — It was a dull night for Baltimore police until — "we found a dead man with his head and leg cut off," panted Richard McCrune, 12, to Desk Sgt. Frederick D. Brown.

The homicide squad found the victim in a darkened doorway in the warehouse district.

It was a dummy.

Planning Aid for the Older Worker

To discourage discrimination against older workers in industry, Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins appointed a committee for determining ways and means in solving the problem. Here is the committee, in Washington. In the center is Dr. Harry Woodburn Chase, chancellor of New York University, chairman; at left, Ruth Hall, deputy commissioner, division of old age assistance, New York; and at right, William S. Knudsen, president of General Motors Corporation.

Mexican Trend Toward Right, Minus Strife, Seems On Rise

BY WILLIAM H. LANDER
United Press Correspondent

MEXICO, D. F. — Hard as it may be for some to realize, Mexico is becoming relatively conservative.

Millions of people still either think of it as the land of Pancho Villa or as a "red" country.

Actually, neither is the case. The development of the machine-gun and of aviation make it out of the question for a general on horseback successfully to rise now. And as for being Communist, the trend today is so much to the right that the "left wing" elements have difficulty in discovering ways and means of differentiating themselves from conservatives.

Mexico now is in the throes of several complicated social, agricultural and economic problems, and millions of its inhabitants are having a hard time making ends meet, due to the skyrocketing prices of necessities.

Two Revolts In 9 Years

Impartial observers agree that the revolutionary habit has died down here. There has not been a revolt in nine years. The last two — in 1923 and 1929 — failed without any glory.

Other reasons why a revolt is not likely to occur include:

1. President Lazaro Cardenas has no organized opposition, and today there does not appear to be a person with a big following who might lead an opposition.
2. Many people aspire to be the next president of Mexico but want to achieve this legally. Cardenas' term ends on Nov. 30, 1940. Cabinet members who desire to run must resign one year before that. So, not until a selection of a candidate is made (producing the natural discontent among those not chosen) is there any likelihood that any good politician or general would be so rash as to ruin his chances by an illegal move.
3. The United States does not want a revolt in Mexico. If one should start, the legal Mexican government might be allowed to purchase all the arms and ammunition it might want in the United States.

DEATHS

Urges U. S. to Try New "Aerial Mine"

WASHINGTON, March 1 — Glen L. Martin, airplane manufacturer, told the house Naval committee today the government should try out immediately a new "aerial mine" which its inventor claims will revolutionize aerial warfare.

Representative Church (R-III) recalled that Admiral William D. Leahy, chief of naval operations, had testified such a mine might render parts of a fleet inoperative. The weapon was invented by Lester P. Barlow of Stamford, Conn., a pioneer in aerial bombardment.

Martin said he was studying plans for a new 250,000-pound ship that could carry 4,000 pounds of bombs 11,000 miles at a speed of 380 miles an hour. The ship could be delivered, he said, in 3 1/2 years.

Ex-Bishop Leaves Estate of $465,000

BUENOS AIRES, March 1 — Estate of the late William Montgomery Brown of Galion, Ohio, who died last Oct. 31, was appraised here today at $465,000, most of which was represented by real estate holdings in Cuyahoga county.

Brown, who waged a 12-year fight for reinstatement after being unfrocked for heresy by the house of Bishops in New Orleans, left the bulk of his estate to the cause of Communism as "propagated by Karl Marx."

Publication of a book, "Communism and Christianity," in which Bishop Brown attacked church doctrines, led to his unfrocking.

Calendars Cover Restaurant Walls

CHILLICOTHE — If all the calendars received by a business man during the course of a single year were laid end to end they would reach — well practically over the walls and ceiling of a restaurant.

Edward Schwaerzer, local restaurateur, was so impressed by the number he received this year that he papered his establishment with them.

Rush Troops to Graz

Dr. Seyss-Inquart Map shows trouble zone

Reported mobilization of 40,000 Nazis at Graz, Austria, brought an order from Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg rushing troops and armored cars to the trouble zone. A local putsch and a march on Vienna were reported halted as troops occupied strategic points in and around Graz. Styrian Nazis were reported enraged because Dr. Arthur Seyss-Inquart, minister of the interior, refused to aid them, and charged him with "betrayal" of Austrian Nazism. The appointment of Dr. Seyss-Inquart was one of a number of cabinet changes recently forced upon Austria by Fuehrer Hitler.

British Airways Re-Routes Planes

LONDON, March 1 — Imperial Airways today decided to alter the route followed by its planes between Bangkok, Siam, and Hongkong, after one of its airmen had been fired on by Japanese pursuit planes.

It was announced, however, that the British government retained the "complete right for British planes to fly where they will."

Japan recently asked that British planes not be flown over scenes of Japanese naval operations along the south China coast.

Britishers arriving at Shanghai today reported that an Imperial Airways plane had been fired on by a destroyer, presumably Japanese, while flying from Penang to Hongkong Feb. 25.

$800 Investment Pays Rich Profits

LIMA — An $800 real estate investment, made more than 20 years ago, has paid rich dividends to Ward Taylor, Lima's robust chief of police.

After the land had lain idle for years, Taylor was offered $200 for a lease of oil rights to his 80-acre plot in Michigan. Before the lease expired he had realized more than his original investment, and when the oil continued to flow, he sold out a one-eighth interest for more than $10,000.

Psychology "Prof." Defies Magician

ATHENS — Dr. James P. Porter, psychology professor at Ohio university, challenged the statement of Benjamin Franklin, fourth, Ohio U. graduate student, that "psychology professors are easiest to fool with tricks of hocus-pocus."

Franklin, a Point Pleasant, W. Va., magician has been challenged by Dr. Porter "to open discussion of the accusation at any time or place."

Live and Learn

KANSAS CITY — Bad weather has caused postponement of westward flights so a solicited airline passenger agent asked an arrival from the east:

"Are you stopping in Kansas City?"

"Yes," said the incoming passenger. "I have to. I'm the mayor here."

Blushing because he failed to recognize Mayor Bryce Smith, the agent stammered, "you live and you learn."

DAVEY SOUNDS HOUSE APPEAL

Governor Facing Biggest Political Crisis of Career

federal funds pooled with state funds, and that the United States senate should "launch a searching inquiry."

After listening to an hour-long speech of the governor last night before an estimated 1,400 persons who packed the hall of the house, the representatives voted to defer action until today on the question of continuing the investigation of the actual issue was whether the previously adopted resolution, filed Feb. 23 for aims the adjournment should be rescinded and the session prolonged indefinitely, since the adjournment would terminate the investigating committee's existence.

The resolution to continue in session was pushed through the senate late yesterday without a vote to spare on the tenth roll call. The vote was 19 yes to 3 no, with eight administration followers present but not voting.

Sen. Verner E. Metcalf of Marquette, Republican floor leader and a member of the inquiry body, said continuation of the investigation would be an "idle gesture" if the legislature did not make funds available to finance it.
